

Showing love to others consistently is going to cost you time, money, energy, and maybe even some of your health and wellbeing.

It will require you to go above and beyond where you think your “line” is. To go on for another mile when it feels like the one mile you just walked nearly killed you.

At times it will demand a depth of humility that requires you to keep your mouth shut. And maybe even smile and be kind when by nature you want to strangle someone for their injustice.

Maybe this is what Paul meant when he wrote of himself in Ephesians 4:1 NKJV ...

“I, therefore, the prisoner of the Lord, beseech you to walk worthy of the calling with which you were called.”

Yes, Paul was in an actual prison. How different is your situation?

Are there circumstances that are beyond your control you are praying to change? What if you just asked GOD to change you?

So you could “walk worthy.”

My friend who gave me these 2 words is a beautiful example of walking worthy. May GOD continue to work in her life showing the love of GOD that is in Christ Jesus our Lord.
